

Faction Component Manifest

Warriors

×15 Warriors

×4 Veterans

Buildings

×3 Waystations
(double-sided)

Tokens

×4 Tablet Relics

×4 Figure Relics

×4 Jewelry Relics

Other Pieces

×3 Faithful Retainer
Cards

Complexity

HIGH

Card Wealth

HIGH

Aggression

MODERATE

Crafting Ability

MODERATE

Setup (K)

- 1st Collect all 12 relic tokens and shuffle them face down (no value showing). Place one face down randomly in each forest.
- 2nd Place 4 warriors in a corner clearing that another player has not chosen as their starting clearing, then place 4 warriors in an adjacent clearing on the map edge.
- 3rd Place all remaining relics face down, as evenly as able, among forests not adjacent to your starting clearings.
- 4th Flip your board and tuck a Faithful Retainer card into each of your Retinue column slots. Place all 3 waystations on the Waystations spaces.

Playing the Keepers

As the Keepers in Iron, you score points by recovering relics lost in past conflicts. You will need to delve relics out of the forests, move them to a waystation of the same type, and then recover them. Whether these relics belong to you or the Woodland, though, is another question.

As Devout Knights of an exiled order, you ignore the first hit you take in battle if you have both a warrior and a relic in it, whether attacking or defending. You can also move relics with your warriors.

Your relics are Prized Trophies, so keep them safe. Whenever an enemy removes a relic in any way, they score two points instead of one, and put it back in any forest.

Over time, you will grow your Retinue, three columns of cards that let you take actions. Delving and recovering relics will put your Retinue at risk, though, so you will need to plan ahead and take prudent risks in order to succeed.